Compliance requirements for CIT purposes

The taxable period normally corresponds to the calendar year. Upon request, the tax authorities may allow a taxpayer to use a different 12 months period as a taxable period.

Annual corporate income tax returns must be filed within five months after the end of a taxable period. As of 2014, for the taxable year 2013 and for successive years the final corporate income tax payment has to be made on the same date as the annual corporate income tax return is due, i.e. June 1 if the taxable period is a calendar year. Corporate income tax must be paid in advance installments based on the result of the previous taxable period.

Tax rate

The standard corporate income (profit) tax rate is 15 percent (reduced to 5 percent for small companies and for agricultural companies).

Holding rules

Dividend received from resident/non-resident subsidiaries

An exemption (100 percent) is applicable for subsidiaries registered in EEA countries. For dividends received from other foreign (non-EEA) subsidiaries and from resident subsidiaries, the exemption (100 percent) applies subject to the following conditions:

- Participation requirement: 10 percent of the voting rights;
- Minimum holding period: 1 year (or commitment);
- Not applicable to tax havens.

Capital gains obtained from resident/non-resident subsidiaries

In principle, capital gains are taxable in the same way as other income.

Exemption of taxation on capital gains from disposal of shares applies if the following conditions are met:

- Participation requirement: More than 25 percent of the voting rights;
- Minimum holding period: Two years (three years in case of reorganization);
- Disposed shares belong to a company registered in the EEA country or registered in a country with which Lithuania has a double tax treaty.

Investment income (including capital gains, interest on securities, interest on deposits, etc.) is exempt under certain conditions (applicable to certain types of companies).

Tax losses

In general, tax losses can be carried forward indefinitely if the economic activity from which the loss originated is continued. Loss carry-back is not allowed.

As of the taxable year 2014, ordinary tax losses carried forward can only be set off against up to 70 percent of the calculated taxable profits of the taxable period. This restriction is not applicable to small companies subject to the reduced corporate income tax rate of 5 percent.

Losses from the disposal of securities and financial derivatives can be carried forward for five years and may only be offset against gains from the disposal of other securities and financial derivatives.

- The transfer of losses occurs between companies that have been continuous members of the group for at least 2 years.; or
